SUICIDE OF MURDERER.

Thomas Bechtel, who had been held awaiting investigation of the murder of his sister, Mabel H. Bechtel, at their home in Allentown, Pa., a few days ago, committed suicide yesterday evening in his cell in the Central Police Station. The police consider this act as a practical acknowledgment of Bechtel's guilt. Bechtel was in cell No. 2, on the right side of the corridor. Several relatives and friends were admitted to see him yesterday afternoon. About 4 o'clock he called across the corridor to Alfred Eckstein, Miss Bechtel's affianced lover, who is also held pending the coroner's who is also held pending the coroner's inquest: "Hello Al, are you there?" "Yes," answered Eckstein. Bechtel responded: "I wish you were here with me now, that we might die together." gether."

These were the last words heard from Bechtel. A short time later Eckstein called Bechtel and got no answer, but he thought he heard an unusual gurgle. House Sergeant Frank G. Roth had been through the cells only a short time

At a quarter past 5 o'clock he entered the corridor and called both men. Get-ting no answer from Bechtel, he looked into his cell and was appalled to see a stream of blood running over the cell

Bechtel had laid himself on the bench in his cell and cut his throat with a knife. He was dead when found. The knife lay near him on the floor. How he got the knife is not known. He was carefully searched when placed in the cell and no weapon was found. There is a rumor to the effect that a newsboy

Bechtel was a single man and 30 years of age. He was a laborer, doing odd jobs about the town and in the country. He was a hard drinker, and when intoxicated was easily angered and prone to fight. He was of powerful physique and possessed great courage.

The funeral of the murdered girl took being held at her late home. As the girl lay in the casket, her appearance told its own story. Both eyes were badly discolored as though they had been struck by a clenched fist. There was a big bruise on the nose and several smaller ones on the cheeks and ear. The worst wound, that on the forehead, was hidden by the hair. The body was interred in the family lot in which lie the remains of Lizzie, a sister of Mabei. remains of Lizzie, a sister of Ma who committed suicide by drowning herself 18 years ago.

The suicide of Thomas Bechtel has een followed by the police officials tellng the story of the murder of Miss Bechtel as gathered by them. It starts with last Thursday, when Eckstein accom-panied Miss Beechtel to Philadelphia. He left her there and returned home. Weisenberger met her in Philadelphia, accompanied her to Allentown, leaving Sunday at 4 p. m. and reaching Allentown at 8. They went to a certain place together, where they remained until midnight. Thomas Bechtel heard of this, and being strenuously opposed to Weisenberger he upbraided the girl in her room upon her return home. He struck Cream Ball her a powerful blow on the cheek, causing her to fall heavily against a bureau, dead. Members of the family held a council and decided upon the story made public on Tuesday and upon the disposi-tion of the body and clothing as found. Charles Bechtel's slater's hatchet was used in striking a blow on the head of the dead girl to give semblance of the assault. This happened immediately after midnight. The body was concealed in the home until Monday night, when it was placed in the areaway, where it was found Tuesday morning. Eckstein knew nothing of the murder, he police say.

David Weisenberg was called to testify at the Coroner's inquest last night. He said that he was with Mabel on Sunday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock and then left her at the door of her own home; did not see her after that and made no atempt to do so. He sent a note to her home by messenger at 9 o'clock Mon-day morning. The note read: "If you are a home I would like to see "ou." The boy returned with the answer that Mabel was not at home. The witness never spoke to Eckstein. The latter stopped Miss Bechtel twice on the street when witness was with her and wanted to speak to her, but she refused each time. Eckstein walked away with-out saying anything; witness never promised Mabel $5. Never heard Eckstein make threats. Information charging murder has been lodged against the entire Bechtel family. Eckstein was committed to prison as a witness in default of $500 bail. John and Charles Bechtel were committed to jail in default of $500 bail A. C. Slaymaker,
